BOB DOLE Well, I dont know of any perfect solution. I have been in politics for some time, and I worry about the people who dont vote. And I wonder if its our fault, the candidates fault. People say, “I dont care. One vote doesnt make a difference.” I can give you hundreds of — you can probably give me 200 cases where one vote made a difference. I know it made a lot of difference many times in the Congress. Campaign finance might help. It might help the contributions from coming in from Indonesia or other foreign countries, rich people in those countries, and then being sent back after the L. A. Times discovers it, $250, 000. But maybe there ought to be more debates. I would be willing to have another debate this year. We can invite all the candidates. And talk about the economy. If we dont get the economy to grow, if we dont cut taxes, and give people child credits, and cut the capital gains rate, and get this economy growing, were going to limp into the next century. If we grow the economy its going to help Social Security. Its going to help jobs. Its going to help everything.

BILL CLINTON Let me make one other suggestion, because youre a teacher, you can have an impact on that. One of the things I think that really frustrates people is that so often political campaigns seem to be more about the politicians that are running than the people. And there is a connection. And I think what we have to do is convince people there is a big difference, if you vote one way you will have a Department of Education in the 21st century, if you vote the other way, you wont. If you vote one way you will have an expansion of family leave. If you vote the other way, you will be lucky to save it. But these are important questions. And people have to decide. I think that the American people also need to be a little more responsible and think about whether theres a connection with their lives and what we do in Washington.
