MODERATOR Well, were well behind schedule, so I want to move to our next segment. We move into our next segment talking about Americas direction. And lets start by talking about race. The share of Americans who say race relations are bad in this country is the highest its been in decades, much of it amplified by shootings of African- Americans by police, as weve seen recently in Charlotte and Tulsa. Race has been a big issue in this campaign, and one of you is going to have to bridge a very wide and bitter gap. So how do you heal the divide? Secretary Clinton, you get two minutes on this.
