MCCAIN: No, I – look, we’ve got to fix the system We’ve got fundamental problems in the system And Main Street is paying a penalty for the excesses and greed in Washington, DC, and on Wall Street So there’s no doubt that we have a long way to go And, obviously, stricter interpretation and consolidation of the various regulatory agencies that weren’t doing their job, that has brought on this crisis But I have a fundamental belief in the goodness and strength of the American worker And the American worker is the most productive, the most innovative America is still the greatest producer, exporter and importer But we’ve got to get through these times but I have a fundamental belief in the United States of America And I still believe, under the right leadership, our best days are ahead of us

LEHRER: All right, let’s go to the next lead question, which is essentially following up on this same subject And you get two minutes to begin with, Senator McCain are there fundamental differences between your approach and Senator Obama’s approach to what you would do as president to lead this country out of the financial crisis?
